Throughout history more people living on the Arabian peninsula have subsisted as farm-ers than as pastoral nomads. Farming villages support the comparatively dense population of Yemen, where abundant rainfall waters the highlands during the spring monsoon. Small inlets along the southern coast favored fishing and trading communities.

I would very much like to see a Chinese author write a global history combined more thoroughly with Chinese history. As the second volume of this book focused mostly on European centralized view (no problem with that). To inspect China from a global point of view seems to be a difficult task, hope some good work can come out.
