Computer Network Topologies Maninder Kaur professormaninder@gmail.com What is a Topology? Network topologies describe the ways in which the elements of a network are mapped. They describe the physical and logical arrangement of the network nodes.

What is a Topology? Computer Network Topologies Different

Network topologies [1-2, 8-9] are the technology for arrangement of various computer elements like links, nodes etc. Basically network topology is the topological structure [5] of a computer network. In mathematics topology is concerned with the connectedness of objects which is the most basic properties of space.

Cable required is least compared to other network topology. Used in small networks. It is easy to understand. Easy to expand joining two cables together. Disadvantages of Bus Topology. Cables fails then whole network fails. If network traffic is heavy or nodes are more the performance of the network decreases. Cable has a limited length.

Many home networks use the star topology. A star network features a central connection point called a "hub node" that may be a network hub, switch or router. Devices typically connect to the hub with Unshielded Twisted Pair (UTP) Ethernet.

PC wireless networks, is simple to implement and manage, but has limitations. Since every node must interact directly with the hub, the area of the network is restricted to the strength of the RF signal. Also, if there is any Basic Building Systems Widespread use of computer-based processing enables the automation of all basic building systems.
