Sheet Metal Stamping Dies & Processes Fundamental Manufacturing Processes Video Series Study Guide - 1 - Training Objectives After watching the video and reviewing this printed material, the viewer will gain knowledge and understanding of the stamping process and the die systems used to form sheet metal.

Sheet Metal Stamping Dies & Processes - Manufacturing

Stamping of sheet metal involves cutting or shearing, bending or forming, and drawing or deep-drawing operations. A detail of all the process has been given below. Blanking or piercing: It involves cutting of the sheet metal along a close outline in a single step to separate the piece from the surrounding stock.

process. Stripping force varies based on part material type and thickness as well as punch-to-matrix clearance. This force can range from nearly zero to as much as 25% of the force required to perforate the initial hole. Most applications do not exceed 10% of the perforating force.

complex shapes can be generated using this process, but a good metal stamping design will take the process and material into consideration. As a general rule, the lower the alloy and temper, the more formable the material.

Metal Stamping Design Guidelines - Larson Tool

Stamping includes a variety of sheet-metal forming manufacturing processes using a machine press or stamping press, the processes including punching, blanking, embossing, bending, forming, drawing, flanging, and coining.

Metal Forming and Stamping Presses ... double digit growth for sheet metal material and process equipment. Both countries represent tremendous potential buying power as lifestyles improve. At the same time, Asia region sheet metal feed and stamping press OEMs are becoming global leaders.

Metal Forming and Stamping Presses

Stamping processes to be used for a panel depend on its design. However, normally the processes used extensively are blanking, drawing, piercing, forming, notching, trimming, hemming, etc. Blanking prepares the initial approximate form of the part in flat sheet. Drawing is generally the first operation to attain depth related form.
